11th and 15th November, 1996 to coordinate immediate response including assistance of the Defence services in rescue and relief operations and arrangements for repair and restoration of roads, telecommunications, power infrastructure and other essential services. As far as the questin of Central assistance to the Government of Andhra Pradesh is concerned, a Central Team is visiting Andhra Pradesh on 27.30 Novmber, 1996 to make a detailed assessment of the damage.

(b) Yes, Sir. Disaster management plans are reviewed from time to time and the State Governments, who are responsible for all relief, repairs, restoration and rehabilitation matters following natural calamities, have been asked to update and improve the plans.

(c) The Central Government is required to assist the States in cases of calamities of rare severity. Andhra Pradesh cyclone is a National Calamity. This has been stated by the Prims Minister and Agriculture Minister. There is no provision in law to declare National Calamity as such but the need is to fight this calamity unitedly by State and Central Government. This is being done.
